This page is about acid and softness, freshness and almost no oak. The first 8 wines are all crunch and zip. No wood, well, maybe some subtle staves in a couple, but essential all line and drive. Wines that go well with salt and fat and some spice. The European selection is comforting, the acid seems hidden, but it's there. In good wine, acid is always in the mix. So a page of contrast, a page of thrills and chills.

This page is about weight. There is oak, the Chardonnay section will have it, the top section will have it. You might see it a lot, you may not notice it at all. Whilst the butter elements of Chardonnay might be elusive, that generosity and ripeness can be found in the Marsannes and blends at the top of the page. Comforting, familiar and delicious.

SHADES OF PINK

The wines below are various shades of pink. They're not really a uniform category, but defined only by their colour.

2020	Saint Max	Rose	Provence, France	58
2020	Bellvale	Pinot Noir	Gippsland, VIC	51

**Viognier, Roussanne, Marsanne, Clairette, Bourboulenc, Grenache Blanc

***Muscadelle, Roussanne, Viognier, Sauvignon Blanc, Semillon, Chardonnay

Such a complex list of tastes, textures and flavours here. It's hard to see a thread, but tannin would be a pretty consistent theme. That chewy, chalky texture you get from 60 and 70% cocoa chocolate. You know, the healthy chocolate. These wines are best with food, as the fat, salt, protein and cheesy elements take up the tannin and leave you with a wine feeling almost silky. Savoury and earthy, complex and intriguing, below are wines that will blow you away.

This page has, essentially, two different grapes. Shiraz and Pinot Noir. But beneath the name of the grape, lies the soil that creates huge differences. In the winery, the hands that sculpt an end product to their will. Shiraz from the Barossa compared to one from Beechworth has infinite variation in texture and expression. So too, a PinotNoir from a Premier Cru site in Burgundy, tasted alongside one from Mornington Peninsula could make you doubt the very words on the label. Just two types of grapes, but wonderfully individual bottles of wine.
